Aims and Scope

It is the principal aim of the Journal to conform to the highest possible scientific and technical standards.

Hydrology Research publishes articles within hydrology in its widest sense, with an emphasis on water quantity and quality aspects of the hydrological cycle. Papers that draw upon theoretical and practical applications of scientific results within the broad field of water management.

Submission

All manuscripts should be submitted electronically through our Online Submission and Peer Review System: http://www.editorialmanager.com/hydrology. Authors should prepare their papers in accordance with the current Instructions for Authors, available at http://iwaponline.com/content/instructions-authors, or from the Editorial Office at the address given inside the back cover.

Published in partnership with:

Nordic Association for Hydrology (NHF) is an independent body aiming at promoting Hydrology as a science, increasing the understanding of hydrology, and enhancing the application of hydrological methods within applied sciences and water management, generally and in the North. The Association strongly supports international hydrological co-operation. More information is available at http://www.nhf-hydrology.org/

British Hydrological Society

British Hydrological Society (BHS) was formed in 1983 in response to a need for an independent body aimed at promoting hydrology in the widest sense, with an emphasis on water quantity and quality aspects of the hydrological cycle. It aims to promote interest and scholarship in all aspects of the hydrological cycle. Papers that draw upon theoretical and practical applications of scientific results within the broad field of water management.
