Aims and Scope

It is the principal aim of the Journal to conform to the highest possible scientific and technical standards. Hydrology: Research published articles within hydrology in its widest sense, with an emphasis on water quantity and quality aspects of the hydrological cycle. Papers that draw upon adjusting sciences are embraced as well.

Hydrology: Research is intended to be a link between basic hydrological research and practical application of scientific results within the broad field of water management.

Submission

All manuscripts should be submitted electronically through our Online Submission and Peer Review System: http://www-editorialmanager.com/hydrology. Authors should prepare their papers in accordance with the current Instructions for Authors, available at http://iwaponline.com/content/instructions-authors, or from the Editorial Office at the address given inside the back cover.

Published in partnership with:

Nordic Association for Hydrology (NAFH) is an independent body aiming at promoting hydrology as a science, increasing the understanding of hydrology, and enhancing the application of hydrological methods within applied sciences and water management, generally, and in the Nordic. The Association strongly supports international hydrological co-operation. More information is available at http://www.nfh-hydrology.org

British Hydrological Society

The British Hydrological Society (BHS) was formed in 1983 in response to a clear need in the UK for a new, broad-based, national society for the advancement of hydrology. The Society caters for all those with an interest in the science and practice of hydrology. It aims to promote research and scholarship in scientific and applied aspects of hydrology, and to further the involvement of its members in national and international activities. More information is available at http://www.bhsoh.org
